

ABSTRACT

A base station may organize poll groups into groups having similar predicted durations of subsequent responses. In one embodiment predicted durations may be 5 provided by the devices that are to be polled. In another embodiment the predicted durations may be based on past responses from the devices that are to be polled.